

International Joint Master of Science

M.Sc. in Strategic Innovation and Future Creation

Unique new interdisciplinary postgraduate programme delivered by four European universities:

- University of Malta, Malta
- University of Potsdam, Germany
- University of Teesside, United Kingdom
- Turku School of Economics, Finland

The Masters programme will develop students' knowledge and skills in the areas of creativity and idea generation, innovation management, futures studies and entrepreneurship.

Students will learn to become flexible thinkers who are prepared to recognize opportunities, take risks, increase competitive advantage, add value and deal competently with uncertain futures and change.

The programme will be delivered using a blended learning (e-learning and face-to-face) approach.

Students will be expected to participate in a six day intensive seminar at each of the four participating universities during the two year course.

The unique new International Joint M.Sc. Programme is the right choice if you wish to:

- improve your ability to address exciting challenges and opportunities
- create your own successful future and venture towards it with competence and confidence
- take on a leadership role in enterprise development, innovation management or policy making.
